PREFACE

This is a supplement to The Goodrich Family in America, compiled by Lafayette Wallace Case, published in 1889. The family numbers are those assigned by Dr. Case combined with a new series to identify the members of the last four generations.

The genealogical information has been compiled from family Bibles, other manuscript records preserved in the families, wedding announcements, obituary notices and from letters written by living members of the families. Fortunately several of the Goodriches were interested in family history and left valuable records. In only a very few instances has information been taken from printed genealogies of allied families. The place of burial is noted when known if different from the place of death.

The biographical data has been taken from "One Basset Family", from the histories of the counties and towns in which the families lived and from family papers.

It has not been possible to collect complete information concerning the Curtis Goodrich descendants. Mrs. Minnie Goodrich Morin and Mrs. Agnes Wink Fugitt, granddaughters of Curtis, have furnished most of the data included. A careful search of the records of New Hartford, New York, has yielded some additional items. This work was done by Mrs. Irma Spencer Alexander. It is hoped that anyone having further data will send it to the compiler of this record so that another and more complete edition may be issued.

Mrs. Anna Goodrich Woodford, daughter, and Mrs. Jessie Woodford Lyman, granddaughter, of Edward Mott Goodrich furnished the data for his family.

Sincere thanks are extended to those named and to the others too numerous to name who cooperated in this compilation.

WILLIAM GOODRICH, Ensign, 1620?-1676

1645482

William Goodrich was born in Bury St. Edmunds, County Suffolk, England, about 1620. His father, John Goodrich, made his will April 14, 1632. It reads: "To my said three sons, William Goodrich the elder, William Goodrich the younger, and Jeremy Goodrich, one hundred pounds apiece at twenty-one." To another son, John, was bequeathed all the lands and buildings in Hegerstet. Apparently John was the oldest of the four sons.

According to Stiles the brothers William and John arrived in Weathersfield in 1635. The date of their sailing and the name of the boat in which they came to America are not known. In 1637 William was one of the twenty-six soldiers of Weathersfield who took part in the capture of the Indian fort at Mystic in the Pequot campaign.

William's landholdings are recorded in 1646/7, March 8 (Vol. 1, p. 108, L. R., Weathersfield). They include a house, barn and six acres of land bought of Thomas Ufford bounded by the highway (Main St.) on the east and the Commons on the west. This purchase included 117 acres on the east side of the river. He also bought four parcels of land from his brother John, lying in the Great Plain. His cattle earmark was "a half peny of the under sid of booth ears, of his catell and hoggs." In 1670 the land next Farmington "was divided into 76 shares and one share assigned to each of the householders in Weathersfield on the west side of the river. Each lot was to be 26 rods wide and to contain 52 acres. Ensign Goodrich drew the nineteenth choice." In 1701 the Five Mile distribution of land was made to the 114 purchasers of the Indian land in 1674. Lot no. 30, of 342 acres 171 rods, one of the largest drawings in the list came to the estate of Ens. Will Goodrich.

Sarah Marvin became William's wife on October 4, 1648. She was the daughter of Matthew Marvin of Hartford, one of the original proprietors of that place. Sarah was born in England, probably in 1631, and was brought to America by her parents in the ship Increase in 1636. After the death of William Goodrich she married Capt. William Curtiss of Stratford, Connecticut, where she died in 1702.

ARTICLE XXXIII. OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES

ARTICLE XXXIII.

SECTION 1. The judicial power of the United States shall be vested in one Supreme Court, and in such inferior Courts as the Congress may from time to time ordain and establish. The Judges, both of the Supreme and inferior Courts, shall hold their Offices during good Behaviour, and shall, at any time during their Continuance in Office, be removed by Impeachment.

SECTION 2. The Judges, both of the Supreme and inferior Courts, shall hold their Offices during good Behaviour, and shall, at any time during their Continuance in Office, be removed by Impeachment.

SECTION 3. The judicial power shall extend to all Cases in Law and Equity, arising under this Constitution, the Laws of the United States, and Treaties made, or which shall be made, under the Authority of the United States; to all Cases affecting Ambassadors, other public Ministers and Consuls; to all Cases of admiralty and maritime Jurisdiction; to Controversies to which the United States may be a Party; to Controversies between two or more States; between a State and Citizens of another State; between Citizens of different States; between Citizens of the same State claiming Lands under Grants of different States, and between a State, or the Citizens thereof, and foreign States, Citizens or Subjects.

SECTION 4. The Supreme Court shall consist of a Chief Justice, and six Associates, who shall hold their Offices during good Behaviour, and shall, at any time during their Continuance in Office, be removed by Impeachment.

In 1649/50, March 7, William Goodrich was sworn in as constable for Weathersfield and in 1651/2 he served for the first time on the County Court Jury at Hartford. He so served at least thirteen times in fourteen years.

On May 15, 1656 he, with five others, was made a free-man. From then until his death he is recorded as taking some active part in the affairs of the community nearly every year. In 1657 he and two others were appointed to run the line between Hartford and Weathersfield. In 1660 he was elected one of the deputies at a Court election. He was reelected in 1662, 1665 and 1666. In 1660 one of those chosen Townsmen was Will Goodrich. He was similarly chosen in 1663, 1666, 1672, 1675.

On a number of occasions he was appointed to assist in the administration of an estate. When the Rev. Joseph Haynes was called to the pastorate of the church Will Goodrich was one of four appointed to treat with him. Later William had much to do with the building of a parsonage and still later with the reseating of the church.

William Goodrich was confirmed Ensign of the Train Band on May 11, 1665. He continued to bear that title throughout the remainder of his life. He engaged in two or three minor lawsuits during his short life either as plaintiff or defendant. He was repeatedly called to responsible positions in the community and the church.

His death came probably in October, 1676 and possibly suddenly as he left no will. The inventory of his estate showed a valuation of £915 - 01 - 06. It is supposed that he was buried in the Weathersfield cemetery. A monument to him and his descendants was erected there some years ago.

JOHN GOODRICH, 1653-1730

John Goodrich was born and died in Weathersfield although he went far afield for those days for his wife whose home was in Charlestown, Massachusetts.

It is quite possible that John was a mariner in his youth as he appears to have sent his application for freeman from Guilford in 1676. He was admitted freeman of Weathersfield on May 14, 1677. He was a man of some considerable property. Besides his share of his father's estate he inherited about £200 from his uncle the Rev. William Goodrich of Hegasset, Co. Suffolk, England.

His marriage to Rebecca Allen was performed by Mr. Danford (Danforth) in Charlestown, Mass., March 28, 1678. She was the daughter of John Allen a wealthy sea captain.

John Goodrich was chosen for many offices in church and community; collector, fence viewer, constable which office he declined, sheep master. In 1701 he was one of the collectors of the Town and minister's rate, in 1703 a selectman, in 1707 chairman of the School committee. On Dec. 13, 1714 Mr. John Goodrich and three others "were chosen to look after the boys on the Sabbath Days, and if they are any disorders in sd boys to make report thereof that they may be delt with according to law."

Although he lived until 1730 he divided his real estate between his three sons on Sept. 6, 1716. These deeds were in lieu of a will. Allyn received 13 acres in Weathersfield and 50 acres in Farmington.

John Goodrich died Sept. 5, 1730. Apparently his wife outlived him but the date of her death is not recorded. They were probably buried in the village cemetery beside the church in which they were so active.

ALLYN GOODRICH, 1690-1764

"Allyn ye Son of John Goodrich & of Rebecah his wife was borne november ye 13th 1690." So reads the Weathersfield records.

When only nineteen Allyn married his cousin Elizabeth, daughter of Capt. David Goodrich, by whom he had five children. She died Aug. 25, 1726. On Dec. 10, 1729 he married a second time. This wife was Hannah Seymour of Kensington Parish, a daughter of Samuel Seymour and granddaughter of Capt. Richard Seymour for whom the fort was named.

While living in Weathersfield his father gave Allyn a plot of land which he sold or exchanged in 1721 for three pieces of land situated in the Second Society of Farmington, 26 acres in all. The family seems to have moved to this new home that same year. It was in Kensington Parish and at various times was known as Little Farmington Village, Great Swamp Village, Fort Seymour, Christian Lane, and later Berlin.

Allyn began at once taking an active part in the life of the community. On Dec. 10, 1722 he was chosen surveyor for the highways for the ensuing year. According to the North genealogy he was the Great Swamp Village blacksmith. He was tything man for the year 1735. In 1742 he signed the petition to the General Assembly asking that both Middletown and New Britain be separated from Kensington Parish.

It was probably he who built the ancestral home which stood a little way in front and north of the fort, apparently in Christian Lane. It is supposed that the house was built early in the eighteenth century. "The style was like that of the Root house at the north end of Christian Lane except that the front rooms had only one window in front. It was well back from the road." (North: History of Berlin)

Allyn deeded his whole estate to his wife on March 21, 1761 although he lived three years thereafter.

He died April 8, 1764. His wife survived him several years but just how long is not known as the date of her death is not recorded. It is probable that they were both buried in Christian Lane cemetery.

JOHN GOODRICH, 1734-1816

John Goodrich, like the Grandfather for whom he was named, spent his whole life in one community. It is quite possible that he was born in the house in which he died and where he is known to have lived for many years. It is probable that the house was built by his father although in the nineteenth century it was known as the John Goodrich place. It was torn down about 1870.

John's birthday was probably March 31, 1734. One record gives it as March 26, 1736/7. He married on Oct. 7, 1757 Hannah Dewey of New Britain, daughter of Daniel Dewey. Admiral Dewey belonged to another branch of this family.

According to tradition John was a blacksmith. His son Zenos was a blacksmith and it is believed that John learned the trade from his father and taught it to his son.

The Second Congregational church of Berlin (Worthington Society) was organized Feb. 9, 1775 with John Goodrich as one of the original members. His wife joined the Society Feb. 22, 1775. The two are buried in Christian Lane cemetery. She died Sept. 15, 1812 and he April 27, 1816.

The Revolutionary War record of John Goodrich as established for the D. A. R. is: "In Lexington Alarm Co., 1775 (Capt. John Chester's Co.); in Capt Hezekiah Welles (4th) Co. Wolcott's Regiment before Boston, Jan. March, 1776; in Capt. Hanmer's Military Co. on board sloop Anne, bound for New York, August, 1776."

LEONARD GOODRICH, 1773-1837

Leonard Goodrich was born in Berlin, Hartford County, Connecticut, March 4, 1773. He was a farmer much if not all of his life but he also practiced the trade of tailor.

According to a memorandum in his handwriting he "set out from Berlin 23 June 1794 for New Durham and lived there seven years then moved to Whites Town February 29th 1802, and sold in Whitestown April 1st 1813 and moved April 29th 1813 onto Abner Seymour's House in New Hartford and moved in April 1814" to the farm on which he lived until his death. New Durham, now called Durham, is in Greene County, New York, in the Catskills. It is possible that Leonard lived on Meeting-house Hill, 1100 feet high, which was chosen for a settlement in 1784, or he may have lived on Oak Hill. Whitestown is a township in Oneida County, New York, near Utica. New Hartford was a part of Whitestown until 1827 when it was made a separate township. A. Seymour was one of the first settlers south of the village of New Hartford.

Leonard married Susanna Dickinson of Kensington Parish, Berlin, Connecticut, Feb. 27, 1797, the daughter of Moses Dickinson, a well-to-do farmer who probably participated in the Revolutionary War although his service has never been authenticated. He and his wife and their son Azel and his wife are buried in the cemetery which belongs to the Kensington Parish church known as West Lane Cemetery.

The church and cemetery records of New Hartford do not agree as to the dates of death of Leonard and Susanna or Susan as she is called. One record says Mr. Leonard Goodrich d. Dec. 29, 1837, ae 64, and the other d. Dec. 27, 1837, ae 65; for Susan they are Susan Goodrich d. Feb. 20, 1857, ae 85 and d. Feb. 20, 1859, ae 84. According to family records the first date is the correct one in each case. They are both buried in the Old Cemetery, Oxford Road, New Hartford.

CURTIS GOODRICH, 1801-1883

Curtis Goodrich was born in New Durham, Greene Co., New York, Sept. 6, 1801. His parents moved to Oneida Co. when he was scarcely six months old so his earliest memories were of the country near Utica, New York. There he grew to manhood, established his home and reared his family.

The records of the First Presbyterian Church of Whitesboro, New York, have an entry under marriages Curtis Goodrich, Whitestown, to Sophie Brigham, Paris, April 4, 1822; minister's fee $1.00. Rev. John Frost was the minister. The family records give the year as 1821 and the church at Paris in its list of members of Sept. 1, 1821 includes "Sophia Brigham wife of Curtis Goodrich." Undoubtedly the earlier date is the correct one.

On May 3, 1828, Sophia Goodrich was dismissed by letter from the United Presbyterian Congregational church of Paris to the New Hartford Presbyterian church. Apparently her husband was not a church member at that time. Her father had died soon after the family moved to Paris when she was about eight years old.

According to the Oneida Co. register of deeds Curtis Goodrich first bought land in New Hartford in 1828. Nine times between that date and 1850 he either bought or sold pieces of property in that community.

Eleven children were born to Curtis and Sophia Goodrich in New Hartford and one son and three of the daughters seem to have been married there. One daughter died in infancy, Henry, the oldest son never married and the other children married after leaving that community.

Curtis resisted the fever to go west until 1855. In 1856 he settled in Lisbon, Linn Co., Iowa. His youngest daughter and four of his sons either accompanied him or preceded him to that state. Later his sister Susan joined him in Lisbon and there spent the last years of her life.

The obituary notice of Curtis Goodrich states that he "was the first person to carry mail between the Post Office and the depot in Lisbon, taking the contract when the N. W. R. was completed to the place in 1856 and continued in the most faithful discharge of at times most onerous duties until 1879."

Sophia died in Lisbon June 18, 1868. Curtis, near the end of his life went to live with a son. He died at the Palace Hotel, Iowa City, of which his son O. D. Goodrich was proprietor, March 23, 1883. He was buried in the Lisbon cemetery.

OSMAN DEWEY GOODRICH, 1808-1887

The birthplace of Osman Dewey Goodrich was New Hartford, Oneida County, New York and his birth date May 10, 1808. He grew to manhood in that community but went to Massachusetts for his professional education. He graduated from the Berkshire Medical Institute in 1834 and migrated that year to Huron, Ohio, where he began the practice of medicine. A memorandum in his handwriting states that he arrived in Huron July 12, '34.

In May, 1836, he removed to Allegan, Michigan, arriving there on the fifteenth. He was the first practicing physician in that town. He soon built a house in the village. Although he owned a number of farms from time to time he did not live on one until late in life. "In 1843 Dr. Goodrich received an appointment as farmer to a small band of Ottawa Indians in the northwestern part of Allegan County and spent one year with them."

"Owing to failing health he left Allegan for Berlin, Hartford County, Connecticut, where the Dickinson homestead was located, on October 20, 1845, arriving at his destination on November 6 of that year. The journey was made via the Erie Canal. He engaged in farming for three years, until the building of what was then known as the Canal Railroad (built on the bank or tow path of the abandoned New Haven and Northampton Canal) by Joseph E. Sheffield, New Haven, who employed Osman D. Goodrich as superintendent of division, and afterwards as station agent and paymaster of workmen at Plainville, Connecticut, where he removed in 1848, remaining in the employ of the railroad company and running the first passenger train as conductor on that road from New Haven to Farmington...In 1851 Dr. Goodrich moved to New Haven...remaining in the employ of the railroad company as passenger conductor...until 1855 when he left the railroad business."

He returned to Allegan in September, 1855, and resumed the practice of medicine, as a Homeopathic physician, however, the first of that school in the community. He retired from practice late in life. He died at his farm home of pneumonia on November 3, 1887, at the age of 79 years, 5 months and 23 days.

Dr. Goodrich was married three times, first to his cousin Emeline Dickinson of Berlin, Connecticut; second to Jane E. Shepard of Allegan; and third to Mrs. Mary L. Warner, widow of George Y. Warner. She was the sister of his son's wife and his daughter's husband. He, his three wives and some of his children and grandchildren are buried in the Goodrich-Warner lot in the Allegan cemetery.

(Written from a memorial by Elisha Mix published in Michigan Historical and Pioneer Collections vol. 13, page 115, and from a memorandum in O. D. Goodrich's handwriting in the possession of his daughter, Mary Goodrich Warner.)

The first of these is the fact that the United States is a young nation, and that its history is a history of growth and expansion. The second is the fact that the United States is a nation of immigrants, and that its history is a history of the struggle for the rights of these immigrants. The ninth is the fact that the United States is a nation of equality, and that its history is a history of the struggle for the rights of these equality.

EDWARD MOTT GOODRICH, 1813-1879

Leonard's youngest son was Edward Mott Goodrich, born in New Hartford, N. Y., August 7, 1813. He stayed at home during his father's lifetime and helped with the farm work and with the care of his father during the two years of invalidism preceding his death.

It was probably about 1840 that Edward left home and went to Berlin, Connecticut, his mother's home. While in that vicinity he secured a railroad position. Through his work he became acquainted with Mr. Rufus Dowd of Saybrook who was also a railroad man. In time Edward met the Dowd family including Mary Jane whom he married on Nov. 18, 1847.

Edward Goodrich moved his family to Chicago, Illinois early in the 50's, when his daughter Anna was about three years old. He was a traveling salesman for some years and often away from home. Possibly because of this the family made frequent trips back east. His wife and daughter spent the summer of 1855 or 1856 at his sister Emily's home (Mrs. Daniel Eells) in New Hartford. His mother and his sister Susan were living there at the time. His sister Susan lived at his home in Chicago from 1864 to 1871. At an earlier date his wife's sister, Cornelia Dowd, made her home with him.

Fortunately his house was outside the district destroyed by the great Chicago fire in 1871 which occurred three days after the marriage of his daughter Anna to Mr. James Woodford. During the later years of his life his early interest in agricultural pursuits reasserted itself and he cultivated a large garden near his house. He died in Chicago in 1879. His widow survived him until 1903, making her home with her ~~married~~ daughter.

Edward Goodrich was a thoughtful, lovable man, devoted to his family. His daughter says of him: "His life seemed to go out in doing what he could to be helpful to anyone needing some service, in act or in word of cheer or advice."
